Canada's Army chooses Sig Sauer pistols

The Canadian government selected the Sig Sauer P320 to supply the Canadian Army with new pistols and holsters. The Sig Sauer P320 is produced by SIG Sauer Inc., which is headquartered in Newington, New Hampshire. The contract provides for an initial purchase of 7,000 pistols and holsters, with options for up to 9,500 additional pistols and holsters. The Pentagon had previously selected the P320 for the U.S. military in 2017. The pistols will be utilized by Canadian Armed Forces personnel in "all types of operating environments and under a range of conditions."

Bridge steel fabricator sold to Québec investors

Canam Bridges in Claremont is Canadian-owned. The company was sold in 2020 to a group of investors from Québec, including the Marcel Dutil family who originally started Canam over 60 years ago. The group purchased the company along with a plant in New Jersey and existing Canam plants in Québec, Ontario and Calgary.

Canadian expertise in Concord

Superior Plus of Toronto acquired Concord-based Rymes Propane and Oil in the fall of 2020. The acquisition has expanded the company's U.S. propane distribution and will provide a high-quality and stable cash flow for the local establishment.
